

Week/Dates	Task/Project	Hours worked
9/2-9/8	Went to New Member Orientation, Attended my first GBM, got situated on teams, attended the Kudzu class orientation	5 hours
9/16-9/22	Read and Critiqued "A New Month" and "Dancing Shoes." Presented about Kudzu in two classes	10 hours
9/23-9/29	Read and Critiqued "Otherworld," "Proverbs of Hell," "Summer Piece," and "There is No Such Thing As a Straight Line"	9 hours
9/30-10/6	Read and Critiqued "Growing Pains," "Is God Real," and "You are not too much"	6 hours
10/7-10/13	Read and Critiqued "Slowly I wake," Joaquin's American Dream," and "Things Lost, Things Found." Presented about Kudzu at my sororities' chapter.	10 hours
10/14-10/20	Read and critiqued "But It's Golden," "Diving Into Life," "How Lucky It is," and "I Didn't Think." Edited Two blog posts.	13 hours
10/21-10/27	Read and critiqued "Fifty Cents," Growing Up Tomboy," "Radar," "The Happier Family," "The Smell of Rain," and "To My Dedushka." I also completed the midterm assignment detailing how my kudzu requirements were going. Edited two blog posts. Submitted top choices for publication.	16 hours

Notes/reflection

This week I mostly just got situated into the organization. I spent most of the time learning about how everything worked.

We don't have as many submissions this week so things were pretty chill. I got to present about Kudzu in two English classes, and it was a very enjoyable experience, even if it was a bit nervewracking.

This week was pretty chill, I mostly just focused on writing my critique letters.

Again, a pretty chill week, I got a lot more comfortable with critiquing and editing the pieces.

It was really cool to get to tell everyone about kudzu. I got a really good positive response even though I was really nervous.

Editing the blog posts was really cool because I got to put what I had been learning in my editing class to good use.

This week had a lot going on and I definitely had to commit a more significant amount to Kudzu, which made sense since it was our last week of meeting!